

SPEAKERS AT CHAMBER DINNER TELL OF GREAT FUTURE FOR INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Parr Outlines Work On Key System Operates At Harbor Already Done An Annual Deficit And In Progress Ready Declares

Declaring his faith in great future development for industrial Richmond, outlining some of the things which will have to be accomplished within the next two years to perfect the excellent harbor and industrial facilities and detailing the public improvements that are now in the course of completion, Fred Parr, president of the Parr Terminals company, spoke at the dinner of the chamber of commerce last night.

Mr. Parr said: "I want to first 'confess' to you some of the things that have taken place in connection with the development of the inner harbor and adjacent industrial lands of the City of Richmond."

"Second—I want to tell you of some of the things that are sure to come to pass in connection with the industrial and harbor development during the next two years."

"Third—I want to brag a little bit about the possibilities of Richmond from an industrial and shipping standpoint and outline to you two or three things that I believe are essential in order to stimulate this development."

"Within the past year the following things relating to the development of the harbor and adjacent industrial lands, have been brought to pass."

"First—A lease has been entered into between the City of Richmond and the Parr Terminals company which is the foundation of the present plan of industrial and shipping development."

"Second—The Parr Terminals company has purchased approximately 150 acres of potential industrial land located in the vicinity of the inner harbor of Richmond."

"Third—The Southern Pacific company and the Santa Fe Railway have entered into an agreement by which they agree to serve the shipping facilities and adjacent industrial lands in the inner harbor of Richmond under a joint track arrangement."

"Fourth—The Ford Motor company has purchased 42 acres of industrial land from the Parr Terminals company on which it has agreed to construct one of its standard assembling plants when the land has been made suitable for occupancy."

"Fifth—The U. S. Government and the City of Richmond have agreed upon all terms in connection with the dredging of a channel 30 feet in depth and 200 feet in width from the deep waters of San Francisco Bay to the Ford site and the money has been made available by the City of Richmond, and the Federal Government on Monday of this week, commenced advertising for bids to cover this dredging."

"Sixth—The California State Legislature has under consideration two bills introduced into the Assembly by Assemblyman Easley, has already been unanimously approved by the Assembly."

"The street car service has not been looked at correctly in the past. There is a tendency to consider the public mainly as passengers in automobiles; a second class, the public from the consideration of convenience and safety is the pedestrian, and a third class, those who are in the street car, the latter because the public's eye has been directed at the street car and not at the people within."

Oakley Rancher Kills Wife, Then Commits Suicide

DOUBLE DEATH RESULTS FROM DESPENDENCY

Venerable Couple Are Parents of Eleven Children

A coroner's jury, in an inquest conducted by Coroner Aubrey Wilson last night, decided that E. S. Honegger, of Oakley, met his death from suicide and that his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Honegger, died from "gunshot wounds inflicted by her husband."

MARTINEZ, March 15.—With no acceptable reason for his act, E. S. Honegger, 70, prominent rancher of the Oakley district, seized a .22 calibre rifle Monday afternoon while his wife, Elizabeth, 62, mother of eleven sons and daughters, sat at the table, and shot her through the head. He then seated himself on the floor and placed the muzzle of the gun against the roof of his mouth, pulling the trigger, killing himself instantly.

Miss Helen Honegger, younger daughter of the venerable couple, found them on the floor when she returned from school. Although no definite time for the double tragedy could be set, it was thought that it occurred shortly after the noon hour. An untouched meal was found on the table.

Despondency over ill health has been mentioned as a possible reason for Honegger's act. According to children of the two, there had been no rift of any kind in domestic relations that would lead to the tragedy.

During the many years of their residence in Martinez and Oakley, Mr. and Mrs. Honegger were a devoted couple in the communities where they reared their large family of seven sons and four daughters.

Surviving daughters are Mrs. Alma Guy, Modesto; Mrs. Maude Pittman, Martinez; Helen, Oakley; Ida Veale, Antioch. Sons are Herman, San Francisco; Emil Martinez, Adolph, Oklahoma; William, Portland; Lawrence, Martinez; George, Martinez; Arthur, Oakley.

Sheriff Veale Has 2 Offices In 10 Minutes

"From messenger boy to president" read many advertisements, but it remained for Sheriff R. R. Veale, veteran of thirty-two years of service to experience the unique sensation of descending from president to secretary in something less than 10 minutes.

It all happened when the Sheriff's Association of California, in which body Veale has served as secretary since its inception, elected him president. Hardly had he been thus honored than a sheriff at the Sacramento meeting held recently demanded:

"The activity of this organization rests on its secretary. How are we going to function without 'Dick' Veale as our secretary."

The question appealed to those who knew of Veale's many years of unselfish service in the past of recorder. He was forthrightly re-elected for the "tenth time as secretary, and Sheriff Tom Finn, of San Francisco, named president."

Thirty days from April 14, 1927, actual work on the government contract for the dredging of Richmond's harbor will start, and from that time on for a period of six months there will be no scene of activity on the waterfront.

The news was received here yesterday that Colonel John N. Schulz, United States government engineer in charge at San Francisco, had called for bids for the dredging of the Richmond harbor, and these bids will be opened on April 14, and the contract awarded.

Under government regulations, the successful bidder will be allowed 30 days in which to proceed with his work.

This is just another step that brings the Ford factory nearer to Richmond.

As the dredging is being done, and the channel deepened, the mud will be pumped onto the 15-acre tract of the City of Richmond, the 102-acre tract of the Parr Terminals corporation, 62 of which will be occupied by the Ford plant, and the 57-acre tract of the Parr Terminals corporation, generally known as the Gilmore tract.

As soon as the land is filled and settled, the Ford Motor company will start actual work of constructing its immense new plant.

From the best of information this new plant when completed and ready for operation will represent an investment of $1,000,000 and will employ about 1,500 men.

As an idea of the immense traffic that will ensue after the Ford plant is in operation, it might be stated that the two great transcontinental railroads, the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe, have already provided for a storage yard for the exclusive use of the Ford company, that will have a capacity of 150 cars.

With the removal of the second of the giant dredgers now at work in the Richmond inner harbor, into the channel, construction of the levee around the 102-acre Parr Terminals company tract and the 15-acre city tract under the contract granted by Richmond to Robert P. Easley has begun in earnest.

The levee surrounds the tract of work not included in the job of lowering the channel bed to 30 feet. Bids for the channel dredging work have been advertised for the United States government.

The contract will be awarded early in April and operations will begin immediately thereafter.

According to the contract upon which Easley is working the levee must be finished in 60 working days. The bulkhead is 8,800 feet in length, and a total of 130,000 cubic yards of material will be used in its construction. Over 2,000 cubic feet of dirt must be removed each day. This material will be banked behind the bulkhead and will raise sea level at that point about 12 feet.

SLAYER WILL SPEND LIFE IN SAN QUENTIN

Duarte Gets 2 Sentences For Robbery, Second Degree Murder

Though escaping the penalty of death, Manuel Duarte, must serve two prison sentences which may mean life imprisonment, as the result of his shooting Frank Malley, one of his companions in a hold up on the San Pablo Dam road last week. Confessing full participation in the "petting party" outrages, Judge H. V. Alvarado accepted Duarte's plea to second degree murder, which calls for a sentence of from 10 years to life, and was also sentenced on a count of first degree robbery, for which he was sent to San Quentin for from five years to life.

Duarte made no comment beyond stating that he wanted to begin serving his sentence immediately. He will probably be kept in Martinez, however, until Manuel De Costa, one of the gang, who has pleaded not guilty, comes up for trial March 29. He may be used as a witness against De Costa at this time.

The three charges of robbery preferred against Duarte, 16 year old member of the bandits, will be transferred to the juvenile court.

Property valued at over $500 stolen some time ago from the home of Mrs. J. Landers, 55 Manor drive, Piedmont, was recovered yesterday by Oakland detectives from Duarte's home. The stolen property consisted of an electric sewing machine and two Oriental rugs.

Duarte maintained throughout that he shot Malley by accident in order to silence the cries of the women in the party which was being held up.

200 ATTENDED BOOST DINNER OF CHAMBER

Spirit of Cooperation is Evidenced at Big Booster Dinner

Richmond's street car transportation problem will be solved. This, in a nutshell, was the assurance given the 200 progressive Richmond citizens, both men and women, who attended the chamber of commerce membership dinner at the new Hotel Carquinez last night, by Lester G. Ready, president of the Key System Transit company.

The spirit of co-operation, the fairness of the civic leaders in Richmond, the necessity of meeting changed conditions in street car transportation which the privately owned automobile has produced, were emphasized by the principal speaker of the evening.

GREAT HOPE

"The hope of Richmond and the hope of the transit company rests in Richmond's future development as a great industrial city with congested traffic lanes making street car transportation more of a necessity than it is today," declared Ready. "Your hope and our hope is the building up of Richmond and from the spirit of Richmond it seems to me that the day is not distant when your community will have reached a period of development that will turn our present street car system into a paying proposition instead of a losing proposition as it is today."

Ready quoted figures showing that the operating expenses of the car lines north of the county line, embracing El Cerrito and Richmond, were $275,000 against the total revenue of $226,000 annually.

"But the Key System Transit company believes that in time it can make its service in Richmond carry itself," he declared. "This can only be worked out by the assistance and co-operation of those interested in the development of this community, assistance (Continued on Page Six)

PRIMARY ON DEFENSE

In the forty-four states whose legislatures meet this year efforts are being made to repeal the primary laws. For the first time since the primary struck the country almost a generation ago, the proponents of the primary law are on the defensive. It used to be that the drives were launched against the convention system. Now the primary is held up to us as the better example.

The reason must be apparent. The primary has failed to live up to advance notices. Instead of giving us more representative government as its friends claimed, it has given us more scandal and less representative government.

The final argument and the one which is the most effective against the primary seems to be that it brings about vast expenditures by office seekers. This is inevitable. In order to gain the acquaintance of the people of a great state lots of money must be spent. Advertising rates and traveling expenses are greater than ever before, hence the great cost of the primary.

But there is a greater evil in the primary than its expensiveness. It has brought about not representative government but personal government. Party lines are eliminated, there is no responsibility to organization and little running on political principles. Personalities pure and simple, come to the front in the primary and instead of the representative idea we have the Mexican idea of irresponsible personal leadership.

Doubtless the primary idea will get a lot of severe blows in many of the states this year and deservedly so. As the Chicago Tribune has aptly put:

"The American system of government still depends on representative authority and party responsibility. Both are maintained in the nominating convention. Both are eliminated in the direct primary. The convention system accords with the American system of government. If the results of the direct primary nevertheless were better, the better theory could be discarded. Experience proves that results are not better. They are worse. They are confused, scandalous, irresponsible and with little evidence of good judgment."

A woman election officer in Philadelphia was recently convicted of ballot frauds, which indicates that the women are gradually getting acquainted with politics.

The nation's credit loss of all kinds in 1926 reached $500,000,000.

AVIAN, BOVINE AND HUMAN TUBERCULOSIS

It is only 50 years since Robert Koch proved that tuberculosis is caused by the tubercle bacillus. Koch thought that the tuberculosis of man was not the same as the tuberculosis of cattle, and about 25 years ago he strongly maintained that bovine tuberculosis practically never developed in man. In this contention he was in error, as he subsequently acknowledged, for it was proved that bovine tuberculosis does occur in man not infrequently. It is now known that about 25 per cent of all tuberculosis in children under 5 years of age is of the bovine type, the disease being contracted, as a rule, from drinking milk from tuberculous cows. But there is a considerable difference between human and bovine tuberculosis. The bovine type in man is a comparatively mild disease which seldom, or according to some students of the subject, never develops into serious lung disease, or more than a local infection of the lymph nodes in the neck, deep in the chest or deep in the abdomen.

If an animal has tuberculosis its milk may still be a suitable food for man and its flesh is not necessarily unfit or unsafe for man to eat. One hundred children at Randall's Island, N. Y., were fed on milk from tuberculous cows, and not one of the children developed tuberculosis. In Germany 69 cows with tuberculosis of the udder were kept under observation, their milk being consumed raw by 350 persons through a period of 18 months. Of these persons, 355 remained well, and five of whom two were under 2 years of age, developed tuberculosis of the cervical lymph nodes ("kernels in the neck," "scrofula" the bovine type of tuberculosis).

Tuberculosis is so prevalent among dairy herds that most market milk contains bovine tubercle bacilli, and this is the main reason why pasteurization is necessary to make market milk safe. Pasteurization means heating the milk up to 140 or 145 degrees and no higher, holding at that temperature 20 minutes, then cooling again. This is sufficient to destroy tubercle bacilli or any other disease germs in the milk. Certified milk, coming from tuberculin tested and regularly examined herds, is free from such contamination and is therefore safe to feed an infant and requires neither pasteurization nor boiling.

The form of tuberculosis which occurs in birds and fowl is not pathogenic to man, that is, the disease is very rarely if ever transmitted from fowl to man. So we need not worry much about the health of the hen that laid the egg, nor need we give ourselves any anxiety over the constitutional vigor of the chicken that comes with the candied sweet potatoes.

Whether bovine tuberculosis in man eventually becomes transmitted into the human type is a knotty problem which the pathologists are still trying to settle. We may assume that such a change does occur after a period of 20 years or more in some cases. If so, this would explain the development of active tuberculosis, such as lung tuberculosis, in a young adult who, in early childhood, became infected with bovine tuberculosis.

Anyway, when the tuberculin test, as applied by trained veterinarians, shows a dairy animal has tuberculosis, that animal should be removed from the herd, whether her milk at the moment contains tubercle bacilli or not.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Bad Time to Cuddle

Is there more danger in wearing too much clothing than too little? Should children be dressed very warmly after a sickness of any kind? (P. A. F.)

Answer—Too little clothing can do no harm. To much clothing, in my judgment, weakens natural vitality and renders the individual less resistant to respiratory diseases. Clothing is always injurious to a child's health, but especially when the child is already weakened by sickness. Any child who has enough mentality to take his hand off a hot stove may be trusted to tell you when he has too much clothing on. When I urge as a rule of health that one should always wear the least possible clothing consistent with comfort and the demands of custom, I am not merely uttering a theory. I give this advice after long study, thought and experience, and I challenge anybody to show that it isn't right. Do not force a child to go out with insufficient clothing; but whenever a child wants to leave off this and that article of clothing, for comfort, by all means aid and abet the child in that.

More About Immunity

In the answer to P. A. F. I said I believe too much clothing renders an individual less resistant to respiratory infection. May I enlarge on that a bit? So far as we know at present, that is, our best scientific understanding, is that every individual has more or less immunity against such respiratory infections as scarlet fever, measles, pneumonia, diphtheria, simple coryza, acute bronchitis, and the like. There is some ground for the belief that this immunity is influenced by ultraviolet light and by certain vitamins in foods like fresh eggs, fresh milk, butter and cod liver oil. As I see it, a child or an adult is born with, say, native or natural immunity of two plus. In the course of childhood, if conditions are favorable, this increases to three plus or four plus immunity. At four plus it is just as high as it can go, and once the individual has attained four plus immunity against pneumonia, it is pretty hard to rob him of that immunity, to lower it again, no matter how unhygienic the conditions under which he lives. But in the course of childhood, and perhaps early adult life in the case of some respiratory infections, it is simple enough to subject the individual to conditions which will retard or prevent the development of the highest degree of immunity, to keep him at an unsafe two plus level or to keep him from going above an insecure three plus immunity. One way to keep a child from acquiring the full degree of immunity against the common respiratory infections is confining, either with excessive artificial heat in the home or school room.

HAPPY IS RIGHT!

I often wonder if mothers are just born mothers. Instead of writing books on how to do it, most mothers just go ahead and do it. They may never have heard of Froebel, or the Herbartian system of education, or be up on the latest book on pedagogy, but they surely do deliver the goods. Here's a letter from one mother. It needs no comment. I do not imagine she would have self assurance enough to stand up before a Child Study association to read a paper. Besides she is too busy in her front and back yards. Here's her letter:

"Dear Doctor:
"I have come to tell you how happy I am, not to bring you troubles. I have a dear husband and three loving children. My children are my least bother. They play in the back yard making tents, bird and dog houses and do just as they please. But they are not allowed in the front yard until in the afternoon when I have my work done and we have had dinner. Then we play, have a party and what fun we all have!"

"Every afternoon we go for a walk or to some park. We try to find leaves or see where there is a bird's nest, or pick wild flowers. Then we come home and the baby, 2 years old, is washed and put to bed for a nap. The boy of 4 is given scissors and paper to cut out funny pictures. He is careful not to cut any fingers or feet off the pictured characters because when the pictures are cut neat they are pasted in a book that I made from brown paper. That, for him, is a great reward."

"The boy of 6 has a 10-cent note book. He takes leaves and flowers and draws them and then colors them. If they are not made good I do not put them in the book. Then, too, we catch butterflies and bring them home. We put them under a glass just long enough for him to draw and color them. Then the butterfly is turned loose."

"My boy of 6 understands that he is to take care of his brother and sister. My children do not get to the neighbors, except when my husband and I go, too. We take the children wherever we go. On Sunday all five of us go to church, come home to dinner, and then we take our lunch out to the park or go up the river on a boat. I am so happy. I cannot over 500 quarts of fruit and pickles. I find it is not what you make or the dollars you get that you have in your old days, but it is what you save. It takes 100 pennies to make $1. My husband and I started from the bottom—maybe some day we will get to the top. In the meantime we surely are a happy family."

"QUITE CONTENTED."
Folks, this mother has painted us a beautiful picture of just how lovely life can be when the heart and spirit are right.

Does your child use the public library? What sort of books do they read? Have they difficulty in getting the kind of books they like? If you need any help for them underscore any two of the following list of books which would fit the age and interests of the child and I will send you the lists: "Books from 2-5 years," "Books 5-10 years," "Books 10-15," "Animals and Biography Stories," and "Parents' Reading List." Merely Curiosity

"When Lucinda Blake, a Western widow, hears of a Mrs. Monroe who is seeking her long-lost son, she thinks she finds an identifying mark of a scar on a tramp who asks for food. He steals and from shock she dies. Fred Blake, her stowaway son, coming from a rodeo on Silver, his horse, finds her so and tracks the tramp, who in the ensuing struggle dies after his own revolver goes off. A watchman has seen all. In Sierra Mrs. Monroe is paid a visit by three men."

ANSWER: Spunk her? No, kiss her and give her a hug. She is interested in the looking glass and probably wonders what is back of it.

Should one act natural at all times?

WILLIAM

ANSWER: Well, now, William, you embarrass me just a trifle. I just can't carelessly toss you a "Yes" or "No" answer and let it go at that. It depends somewhat—no, largely—on the time and the place and the circumstances. A bull in a china shop acts naturally for a bull, but you would hardly pin the medal of the Grand Order of the Well Behaved on him would you?

Your instinct and judgment are your best guide in deportment. You know, without being told, that you should act differently in the ballroom than would be expected of you on the ball field. You would act differently at a theatre than you would at a funeral. You would act differently in the presence of older people than with those of your age.

Now—we are back again to your question. And with the above statement I have made as a background I answer your question with a qualified "Yes." And certainly you should never be affected. Be yourself. Be what you seem to be if what you seem to be is acceptable, in the Order of Good Taste.

OH, HUM!

HIS PLAY: It pains me very much when I hear some hypocrite accusing another man of hiding behind a woman's skirts. Good heavens, men have been doing that sort of thing since Eden, even if I've had to contrive a skirt on a hurry-up order. Napoleon wouldn't have been heard of but for a woman's help and inspiration. Every decent poem written has had a woman's smile or tears to make it a go. Every business man who ever made a thousand dollars became a million, has had a woman to go home to tell his troubles to. I think it is the finest tribute in the world that a woman has skirts a man may hide behind—if that ugly figure of speech must be employed. And although this daily wrangle of ours is supposed to be a duel of wits and smart repartee, you know and I know, that women dominate the home and they dominate business and they dominate politics and the royal courts of the world. I think a man who uses that "hiding-behind-skirts" phrase is a sounder skirt to hide behind. It isn't a question of hiding behind skirts; it is the blessed haven of a woman's sympathy, and a woman's understanding, and a woman's sense of personal sacrifice that men depend upon. Oh, by the way, honey, will you drop into the Bon Ton store tomorrow when you're downtown and tell 'em I can't pay the bill till the 20th of this month, and do run into the bank and see what our balance is, and on the way home stop into the Blue Ribbon Grocery and—what are you gizzling at?

HER COUNTER PLAY: You blessed idiot, you—but all men are like that!

ART TREASURE STOLEN FROM MEXICO CHURCH

By OSCAR K. GOLL (By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, March 15.—A most highly prized and cherished painting depicting the Virgin Mary and the Christ Child, valued at more than $750,000, and brought to the American continent in the fifteenth century by the Spanish Conqueror, Fernando Cortez, has been stolen from its sacred hiding place in the Cathedral of Mexico City.

This was exclusively revealed to Universal Service today by Roberto Carrillo, former chief of the Mexican secret service, who now is in New York with a number of investigators in an effort to recover the painting, which he believes has been brought to New York for disposition.

According to Senor Carrillo the canvas was originally hung in the Cathedral of Mexico City by Cortez himself upon the completion of the first wing of the structure in the latter part of the fifteenth century. It was officially dedicated by the royal court of Spain, sent to America and presented to the church dignitaries of New Spain by the king.

The painting, Senor Carrillo says, which was deliberately slashed from its frame by the looters of the sacred edifice, is six feet wide and eight feet long. It bears the signature of "Benito Rameraz," and was executed by him at the order of the then Spanish king.

This work of art was the most cherished treasure of the church in Mexico and before the revolutionary periods of the last decade was frequently taken from its hanging and most reverently carried by the faithful to great outdoor religious gatherings where thousands upon thousands of people would pay it homage.

Senor Carrillo says the painting was stolen by foreigners and the theft was not the work of native Mexicans because of their sincere devotion to the church.

Several solid gold images also disappeared about the same time that the painting was reported missing, and according to the chief of the secret service were valued at $20,000 American money.

JUST ANOTHER BLONDE IS AT THE RICHMOND

Ziegfeld's Follies seem to be a school for motion picture training. Judging from the cast of the national's "Just Another Blonde," today's attraction at the Richmond theatre.

Dorothy Mackall has the feature feminine role and Louise Brooks has the second feminine lead. Both are former Follies dancers.

Miss Mackall secured her first American engagement with the Follies just after she came to America from England several years ago. She graduated from the Follies to pictures and is now one of First National's most popular featured players.

Miss Brooks started her career with the school of Ruth St. Denis dancers and toured the United States with them for two years. Then she danced in George White's "Scandals" and at the Cafe de Paris in London, and later became a sensational dancing success in "Louis the 14th" and the "Follies."

This brilliant pair of ex-Follies dancers are such as Coney Island entertainers in "Just Another Blonde." Jack Mulhall has the featured male role in "Just Another Blonde" and William Collier, Jr., has the second male lead. Other film features include "Love and Kisses," a comedy scream; "Prizma," a Grandstand Race "Sportlight."

THE RED MILL COMES TODAY TO CALIFORNIA

Tulips, cheese and ice were the three important and stupendous problems faced in the production of Marion Davies' latest Cosmopolitan vehicle, "The Red Mill," a colorful romance of Holland, staged on a spectacular scale and coming today to the California theatre.

Tulips, whole fields of them, had to be grown for the Holland scenes in the new play. Bulls, imported from Holland, were planted and raised to maturity in the hothouses at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, then transplanted on the settings representing a quaint Dutch village and in fields beside the dykes.

The cheeses were needed for barges floating in a huge canal blanketing the Holland village. Piles of them had to be placed before the town cheese factory; bargains had to pass to and fro. The groceries of Los Angeles were ransacked, and almost every available cheese in the city was purchased to add verisimilitude to the odd scene.

The ice proved the heaviest task of all. The great canal had to be frozen over for a winter festival, with several hundred people skating in it. Pipes were placed beneath the water, and a refrigerating plant erected out of the camera lines, through which freezing mixtures were generated and pumped to the pipes, until the water was frozen into a huge block.

The new story is a colorful romance of the Land of Dykes, adapted from the famous stage play of the same name by Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert; one of the sensational theatrical hits of a few seasons ago. Miss Davies plays a quaint Dutch heroine in a strange story of blended comedy and mystery, with a cast that includes George Siegmán, Louise Fazenda, Karl Dane, Snitz Edwards, Fred Gamble, Russell Powell, William Orlamond and others of note. William Goodrich directed it from a scenario by Frances Marion.

Other features include "King Bozo," an Earle Foxe comedy; "Mutt and Jeff" and "International News."

"Flaming Youth" Not So Bad, Says U. C. Verdict

(By RUTH COLLIER)

(By Universal Service)

BERKELEY, March 15.—"Flaming youth" in an American college drink no more than any other group of society, according to opinions expressed by student leaders today on the University of California campus.

"Drinking is not a sin to be attributed only to the younger generation. In all walks of life—young or old, in college or not—one will find the same proportion of drinking." Such was the assertion of Miriam Collins, vice-president of the Associated Students.

Francis E. Bowen, president of the sophomore class, maintains that prohibition as it now stands is a "flap." Change is therefore highly advisable. "Drinking in the college of today is largely a survival of the old time days when every college man was supposed to have his mug and a jolly good time," he declared. "This feeling, plus the idea that prohibition takes away the freedom of the individual, causes collegiate drinking."

Robert E. McCarthy, president of the Associated Students, stated that "drinking is probably the exception rather than the rule" among students. A straw ballot conducted on the Berkeley campus last September proved that the

Can't Slight English Queen Even In Play Avers Censor

(By Universal Service)

PARIS, March 15.—A dialogue regarded as slighting the Queen of England, the Prince of Wales and Jean Nash, the world's best dressed woman, had to be deleted from the play "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," before the British censor would grant a license for its production.

This was revealed to Universal Service today by Edgar Selwyn, who will produce the play in London about the middle of May if he can find a theater.

He is now in Paris arranging for the production of "Dancing Mothers" at the Theater Femina.

"You will have to be the Queen of England to get away with that," is a line spoken by one of the girls in the original manuscript and as produced upon Broadway to which the British censor objected, according to Selwyn.

"The Prince of Wales is a fine chap," says a blonde in the play. "Even if he were not the Prince he could easily get a job playing a ukulele," is another sally to which the censor objected.

"What gave me the greatest shock, however," said Selwyn, "was when the censor objected to a dialogue about Jean Nash."

"The action during the dialogue takes place in Paris. One girl says: 'Let's go to the Ritz bar and watch all the famous people of Paris—the Dolly Sisters, Fannie Ward and Jean Nash. Gee when you think of what Mrs. Nash got out of the gentlemen it just makes you sick.'"

"The censor explained that remarks of this sort are not permitted on the British stage about living persons."

"The deletion in the dialogue about the Queen and the Prince was ordered upon the grounds that no references can be made in plays to living members of the royal family."

"The license for 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes' was refused twice, and I went to London and asked for an itemized list of the objectionable matter."

"I found Lord Cromer a most remarkably equipped and fair-minded censor. After he had pointed out the objectionable matter I deleted the lines and the license was granted."

"My experience in the matter convinces me that a stage censor such as exists in England is the only solution for the ruck and muck of Broadway."

"If we could find an impartial and cultured critic above all reproach and suspicion with the interest of Cremer, Broadway would soon be rid of salacious and filthy plays."

"The British system of censorship is exceedingly wise. A producer doesn't have to invest thousands of dollars without knowing whether or not the play will get by the police."

Coolidge Rejects Speaking Invitations

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, March 15.—President Coolidge has rejected all immediate speaking invitations for a very interesting reason.

He told visitors today he figured he could do better work for the public by staying at his desk than by going out to furnish entertainment for select audiences or making long-winded speeches instructing the people what to do.

Since Congress adjourned, invitations have piled in upon him with every mail. The volume of executive work has also increased. Arrangements for the arms and economic conferences at Geneva are the most pressing problems, it was said.

general sentiment of the colleagues was overwhelmingly in favor of the Volstead act.

Chandler Colors Are Favorites

In selecting color combinations for their new 1927 models, Chandler body designers followed the dictates of fashion leaders and chose those multiple-toned combinations which give the favored choices for Milady's gowns, hats and wraps this season.

Beautiful hues of blue, brown, fawn, green and grey predominate among the 25 distinct models which comprise Chandler's 1927 line.

Strangely enough, the sales popularity of the various leading models on the new Royal Eight, Big Six, Special Six and Standard Six chassis do not at all coincide in point of color choices.

"Perhaps different colors appeal to different types of motorists," said George Olson, 412 Macdonald avenue, local Chandler representative. "It's difficult to explain why the Royal Eight buyer prefers Holyoke Blue, why the Big Six buyer prefers Two-Tone Fawn, why the Special Six buyer prefers Two-Tone Grey and why the Standard Six buyer is most pleased with Lotus Blue and Two-Tone Fawn—yet factory sales records prove this to be a fact."

"We never find a buyer who can't make up his mind about which color he likes, because the color combinations are so varied and so pleasing that they win approval at a glance."

Among the colors and color combinations available in the various models of Chandler's 1927 line are: Sheridan Grey, Silver Grey, Buckingham Grey, Two-Tone Brown, Lotus Blue, Two-Tone Green, Green and Black, Dark Blue, Pearl Grey and Olive Green, Navy Grey and Dark Blue, Two-Tone Grey-Green, Light Brown, Blue and Buff, Sage Brush Green, Two-Tone Fawn, Bioge Brown and Nevada Grey, Two-Tone Bioge Brown, Two-Tone Sage Brush Green, Brewster Green, and Holyoke Blue.

FLOOD HEIRESS FILES RIGHT FOR $100,000

(By Universal Service)
REDWOOD CITY, March 15.—Mrs. Constance May Gavin launched her long awaited legal effort today to establish her alleged right as the daughter of the late James L. Flood, multimillionaire, and to share in his estate valued at more than 20 million dollars.

Filing a petition in the superior court for a partial distribution of the estate, Mrs. Gavin asked that she be paid $100,000 in the proceedings. April 14 was the date set for a hearing on the petition by Superior Judge George Buck. Mrs. Gavin's first move will be to establish her identity as Flood's daughter by his first marriage. In the event the court grants the partial distribution of the estate, it is pointed out, that will comprise a judicious approval of her claim to two-ninths of the entire estate which she claims as her legal share would allow.

In his will filed for probate February 24, 1926, Mrs. Gavin was not mentioned as her relationship is not recognized by the Flood family.

Parr Outlines Work On Harbor Already Done And In Progress

and will, we believe, be approved by the Senate; and which declares that the State of California has no objection to the lease being entered into between the Parr Terminal company and the City of Richmond, and that no rights of the State of California are being violated thereby. This will clear the objection that has been raised by certain taxpayers of Richmond to the effect that the lease from the City of Richmond to the Parr Terminal company, placed the title of industrial lands granted by the State to the City in jeopardy.

A second bill has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Sharkey, which if it becomes a law, will enable cities to make leases of lands owned or controlled by them for periods of time not exceeding fifty years so long as there is nothing in their own charter to prevent the making of leases for a maximum of fifty years. This bill has been unanimously approved by the senate and it is not anticipated that there will be any objection in the Assembly.

The above legislation has been very effectively handled by City Attorney Carlson at the request of the City Council of Richmond.

"Seventh—The petroleum products moving through the harbor of Richmond have been maintained to almost the capacity of the dock located at the outer harbor of Richmond.

"The sugar has been re-gained for the harbor of Richmond and there is now approximately 7,000 tons of sugar per month moving through the dock located on the inner harbor.

"The above things could never have been accomplished had it not been for the very unusual spirit of cooperation that exists between the leaders of the City Council and the leaders of the Chamber of Commerce of Richmond. No finer team-work could exist in any community. It represents a tremendous asset and one that should never be lost.

"Within the next two years, the following things will have been accomplished:

CHANNEL DREDGING

"The dredging of a channel 30 feet in depth and 200 feet in width to the inner harbor will have been completed.

"Approximately 200 acres of industrial lands within the vicinity of the inner harbor of Richmond will have been reclaimed by filling from the dredged materials so as to make them suitable for industrial purposes.

"The railroad lines of the Santa Fe will have been extended and the new lines of the Southern Pacific company will have been constructed, and a joint track to be used by the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific and accommodating not less than 150 cars, will have been completed.

"The plant of the Ford Motor company to cost not less than $2,000,000 and to employ not less than 800 men will have been well started. If not completed, within that time.

CAR SERVICE

"Street car lines or bus service of the Key System Transit company will have been extended to serve the Ford Motor company and other industries that will be located on the inner harbor of Richmond.

"A survey should be made by some competent engineer to determine the best drainage system for Richmond.

"Immediate steps should be taken to agree upon the plan of widening certain existing thoroughfares and of providing new major highways. The new artery that is now contemplated between Richmond and Oakland Moie, which will handle heavy traffic, should be put through at the earliest possible date.

BETTER FERRY SERVICE

"The Southern Pacific should be prevailed upon to add at least one more ferry boat to the service now being maintained between Richmond and San Francisco.

"A bond issue should be voted which would clearly indicate to the federal government that the city of Richmond is prepared to do its part in connection with the widening and deepening of the channels serving Richmond harbor.

"If a new project is approved by the federal government whereby the channel would be dredged to a depth of 32 feet and a width of 400 feet, then all of the maintenance cost of the channel after it has once been dredged to the approved depth, will be paid for by the federal government, thereby effecting a saving to the city of Richmond of approximately $30,000 per year.

RENEWALS PROMISE

"In concluding, Mr. Parr said: 'It is therefore of the utmost importance that some well-founded plan be immediately agreed upon and aggressively carried forward by which the advantages of Richmond may be laid before the prospects both locally and in eastern centers.'

and comfortable transportation. Three hundred thousand entrust their safety to its care each day. The motormen and conductors are human beings. It is their desire to serve.

ASKS FORBEARANCE

"The Key System Transit company believes that in time it can make its service in Richmond carry itself, but this can only be worked out by the assistance and co-operation of those interested in the development of this community—assistance in a very definite way. Additional burden of reconstruction and paving must not be placed upon the system at this time. You must bear with us in not requiring increased expenditures. If you must pave streets on which street car lines are located, it will be necessary to re-locate the company of this obligation, or allow them to continue the use of the center portion of the street with less expensive pavement. The service cannot bear the burden at this time."

70 Mile Gale At Weepah Abated

(By Universal Service)
TONOPAH, Nev. March 15.—The 70 mile gale that yesterday arose in Death Valley and swept over icy silver Peak Ridge upon windy Weepah has abated. The camp has almost repaired the damage, and extra canvas shelters have been rushed there from Tonopah.

A scurry of snow and the fierce, drumming wind that beat down the tents and scattered bedding like chaff caused much suffering among the pioneers. Several found refuge in a covered shaft on Senator Houlahan's "old prospect."

The refugees were an elderly couple just come in from Iowa, who called it a "cyclone cellar," and found themselves very much at home in Weepah.

A 90 horsepower Curtis airplane in which T. C. Alexander and L. E. Good of Los Angeles were scouting around to the camp, was forced to descend near the Goldfield highway. The exposed stop at Weepah making a landing there infeasible.

Pacific Coast Cage Title Won 4 Times By U. C.

(By Universal Service) BERKELEY, March 15.—By winning its fourth consecutive Pacific Coast conference title, the University of California basketball team now claims a record unequalled by any college in the United States.

Captained by Francis Watson, they did not lose one of their fifteen games in 1927. Nor did they lose any of their fourteen 1926 games. Further, they have won thirty-eight straight scheduled games in three years, their last defeat being by a one-point margin at the hands of Nevada on January 30, 1925.

Only two members of the regular five this year were veterans.

Pedrotti Wins In Cue Contest Here

Taking two straight games from Jerry Allen, J. Pedrotti won last night's billiard match at the Fern Leaf cigar store. Pedrotti took the first game, 50-46, and the second 50-39. He had a 15-point handicap. Some night this week final matches in the tournament will be played off, with Pedrotti meeting Shaw and Petuya playing Allen.

FEAR FALL OF SHANGHAI TO CANTON FORCES

(By Universal Service) LONDON, March 15.—The fall of Shanghai to the Cantonese is believed to be imminent with the report that Chang Tsung Chang is preparing to withdraw to his own province, reports received here tonight indicate.

In the meantime it is learned authoritatively in London that Chang Kai Shek, the southern commander-in-chief, is negotiating with Chang Lin for an agreement. The Westminster Gazette correspondent at Shanghai cables that Chang Tsung Chang has dropped his daily demand for $15,000 from the merchants and business associations in Shanghai and is demanding a lump sum of $50,000 by Friday.

If he receives this it is believed he will retire to Kiang Su. If he doesn't he will retire to the Shanghai area, thereby putting that city in danger and bringing the looting armies on the scene.

(By Universal Service) MEXICO CITY, March 15.—British residents in Nicaragua feel amply protected by the American forces, according to Captain Lecky, commander of the British cruiser Colombo, which has arrived here to pay a courtesy call to the Mexican official.

The Colombo formerly was at Corinto, Nicaragua.

Captain Lecky said the British residents had deemed it unnecessary to take refuge aboard the Colombo, being confident that their lives and property were well safeguarded by the American marines.

AMBITIOUS AMBROSE

New "Rugby Pass" To Add Laurels To U. C. Gridiron

BERKELEY, March 15.—C. M. "Nibs" Price, football coach at the University of California, is probably better equipped than any other coach in the nation to take advantage of the new changes in the playing rules, at least insofar as they tend to introduce Rugby features into the American game.

During the time that Price was an undergraduate at California, the English style of football was in vogue here, and that is the type of game he played. The rule made at this year's session of the national committee practically adopts in its entirety the "Rugby pass," which allows the man carrying the ball to throw it to any other player on his side providing the receiver is not in front of the passer.

HANGS UP BOWLING RECORD
PEORIA, Ill., March 15.—A new record was hung up yesterday in the American bowling congress by B. Peterson, Chicago, who dropped 701 pins to top the previous mark of 679 held by J. Fairman, of Grand Rapids, Mich. Peterson, who is 21 years old, is here on a visit from Sweden. C. Sumner, of Akron hit 665 to take third place, and A. Trapp, Chicago, is fourth with a 666 mark.

NEW RULES DON'T BOTHER PRICE

Owing to his having played rugby when a student at the University of California, Clarence Price, football coach, is well fitted for organizing his football team this year under the new rules. "Nibs" will start drilling the new rules into his players next Monday when spring football practice begins.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 15.—With a string of more than 200,000 points made in 3000 some odd games, H. Quigley, Grand Rapids druggist, and Harry R. Wells, owner of a trucking business, are still continuing a billiard match which they started eight years ago. Wells at present is 63 blocks behind Quigley. They play every Tuesday night.

PARR TALKS
Sharing equal honors with the splendid presentation of the Key System Transit company's Richmond problem was the straight-from-the-shoulder talk of Fred D. Parr, president of the Parr Terminal and the man who is directing the destinies of Richmond's waterfront facilities.

Parr was optimistic of Richmond's future. He, like Ready, praised the fine spirit of co-operation, the united citizenry that is giving its best thought to Richmond's growth and prosperity.

Highlights in Parr's talk briefly summarized, follow:

Richmond should employ an expert engineer to work out a plan to create a storm sewer which would prevent the flooding of the streets—a tremendous handicap to proper industrial development in the lowlands on the bay shore.

GIVES SUGGESTIONS
Certain streets should be widened before any more structures are built making an operation costly and unnecessary.

A major highway should be built along the waterfront from Richmond to Oakland—a plan that is already under consideration and nearing definite shape under the direction of Dr. Carol Aronovici, Richmond's city planning engineer.

The Southern-Pacific should be prevailed upon to increase its auto-ferry schedule between Richmond and San Francisco not only as a matter of good business in the future but because it is vital to Richmond's progress at this time.

That a bond issue should be voted providing sufficient funds not only to deepen the channels in the inner and outer harbors to 32-feet but to provide additional facilities for handling the new business thus created.

Urged a channel 400 feet wide instead of 200 feet as at present planned, and depth of 32-feet as against 30 feet.

The government, he said, would after approving such a plan, bear all future maintenance cost, amounting to approximately $30,000 a year, which otherwise would have to be paid by the city of Richmond.

That the Parr Terminal would match the city dollar for dollar in providing extra waterfront facilities, such as wharves and docks and warehouses, was another striking statement made by Parr.

The full text of the splendid talks of both Mr. Ready and Mr. Parr are found in other columns of today's RECORD-HERALD.

President P. M. Sanford presided at the dinner last night and happily introduced the speakers of the evening. He, too, called attention to the fact that Richmond was a united community, that its citizens were alive to the responsibilities of today and awake to the tremendous future tomorrow and stood ready to co-operate with those men and those organizations seeking to develop Richmond as a great industrial city.

Under the direction of Archie Winchcole, chairman of the entertainment committee of the chamber of commerce, a fine musical program was presented.

This included two songs by that master singer, Michael Patrick Brennan, "I'll Forget You," and "I'd Build a World in the Heart of a Rose," a violin solo by Ward McRacken, while Winchcole himself sang "The Little Irish Girl" and "Roomie" in the accompaniment.

Out of last night's meeting will grow a closer spirit of co-operation between the traction company and Richmond and it is certain that the transportation problems of the community will be satisfactorily worked out.

Gambling Bill Is Killed In Nevada

(By Universal Service) CARSON CITY, Nev., March 15.—A bill passed by the Lower House of the Nevada Legislature proposing to license gambling in the State of Nevada was killed in the Senate today.

Under a suspension of the rules Senator Scott moved that the Senate reject the Assembly bill. This surprise move carried 9 to 8 and ended the matter at this session unless the proponents of the measure are able to bring it up again on the grounds of irregularity of today's action. This is not expected as the session ends Thursday.

Wife Won't Believe He's Ill; Man Kills Self; Leaves $55

(By Universal Service) CHICAGO, March 15.—Because he was ill and was unable to convince his wife of the fact, William Petrsyn committed suicide today. He took gas.

The man four days ago called his daughter Tessie to him and dictated his will, leaving his lone $55 to her. Then he dictated, in the presence of his wife, his last statement.

"I am about to lose my life. I am sick and my wife won't believe me. She won't let me go to a hospital."

Instant hot water at 3 a. m. by turning faucet

Automatic gas water heater brings comfort, convenience

The nearest hot water faucet is always a source of refreshing comfort—with an automatic gas water heater in your home.

It supplies plentiful hot water any time. All you do is turn on a hot water tap for a cupful or gallons of steaming water.

Two kinds of automatic heaters

There is one type of heater called the "Automatic Storage System." It keeps a supply of steaming hot water in the boiler—always ready for use. While another, called the "Automatic Instantaneous Type," heats an endless stream of water at the turn of a faucet. No boiler needed here, for the water heats as it flows through hot coils.

The Best Investment Is In Fong Wan Herbs

4837 Shattuck Ave. Oakland, Cal. July 30, 1926.

Ten years ago I had Malaria which left me with a twinging pain in my left kidney and running around my left side. Before I came to Oakland I had treated with numerous physicians and had been in several hospitals in New York. As I got no relief whatever, I was advised to make a change of climate. I therefore came West, but here I suffered as badly as ever.

Finally a friend urged me to try the FONG WAN HERBS. One week of that treatment gave me wonderful, permanent relief. During the year that has elapsed since I have had absolutely no indications of my former complaints.

How wonderful it seems that the FONG WAN HERBS could thus help me after the doctors and hospitals had failed. I am a barber by trade. Had it not been for the FONG WAN HERB TREATMENTS now could I have earned a living while suffering with those terrible pains!

I am very thankful to the FONG WAN HERB SPECIALIST for what he has done for me and am giving him this testimonial as a token of my gratitude.

David, Jonathan - Mephibosheth Is Topic Of Bulgin Services

Chips That Fall From Bulgin Axe

If it is a fact that man is made for two worlds, then you are a fool if you are only living for just one.

Some of you fellows are hitting the "bull's eye" all right but what are you aiming at?

If man did not fall in the garden of Eden, he had a terrible fall somewhere.

The matter with society today is the dog-eat-dog spirit.

Never tell anyone you've got a secret. You are a soul and your soul has a body.

You would all jump into God's chariot if you only knew what God had for you.

I'd rather try to save a drunkard than one of the stingy, narrow-minded, self-satisfied kind.

Last night was Odd Fellows' night at the big tent where the Bulgin company is conducting one of the most successful revivals held in Richmond in years. A huge crowd listened with breathless attention while Dr. Bulgin spoke in ringing tones on one of his best known topics.

The descriptive power of Dr. Bulgin was never more interesting than that of last night in his introduction to his great theme, "David, Jonathan and Mephibosheth." He held the interest of the great audience for one hour with his pungent, epigrammatic statements. He exalted the spirit of brotherhood as against the low class selfishness so dominant in American life today.

Mephibosheth, said Dr. Bulgin, is a picture of the disabled human soul. He is also a representative of a beneficiary—the first mutual brotherhood. He also represents the man saved for the sake of another, and a true picture of a disabled human soul lifted into the kingdom of God.

Jury Chosen In $1,000,000 Ford Libel Suit Trial

By GENE FOWLER

(By Universal Service)

DETROIT, Mich., March 15.—Six women were on the jury selected the second day of trial of Aaron Sapiro's million dollar libel suit against Henry Ford. Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond in instructing the jury, indicated the trial will take "several weeks."

The jury was sworn in at 4 o'clock.

Attorneys tonight agreed with consent of Judge Raymond to permit Henry Ford to come to court only when he is wanted as a witness. He will be allowed to remain away until requested to appear. His testimony, attorneys added, will not begin until next week, probably Wednesday or Thursday. Mr. Ford will appear voluntarily as a witness for the other side.

The jurors are:

Mrs. Anna Konen, housewife; Herbert Schoenfeld, hardware merchant; Carl P. Halgren, retired clerk; Charles F. Doly, farmer, retired; Ernest Schwein, cafe employee; Mrs. Clara N. Hoffman, housewife; Mrs. Grace L. Stil's, widow; Charles A. Parkhurst, dry goods merchant; Mrs. Anna C. Brown, housewife; Mrs. Grace A. Jewel, woman's wear; Mrs. Emma S. Clarkson, housewife.

Canada Acts To Squelch Smuggling of Liquor to US

(By Universal Service)

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 15.—No liquors may be allowed to leave Canada, in future except under a bond of a reliable guarantee company, the bond not to be surrendered except on production of a certificate that the liquor has been landed at the port where it was destined.

The change is but one of the many drastic amendments which, according to Ottawa state, are to be made in the laws governing smuggling.

Penalties for smuggling will be greatly increased, the smallest fine to be levied being set at $200, and the shortest prison term one month.

Customs officers are given the power to make arrests without warrants.

In the case of liquor ships the presence of an individual aboard is to be sufficient presumption that he knew the ship was carrying liquor. Blank invoices are prohibited and warehouses on the international border banned.

Communism And Fascism Lauded By H. C. Wells

(By Universal Service)

PARIS, March 15.—H. C. Wells, lecturing before an audience in Sorbonne tonight, pointed to Fascism in Italy and Communism in Russia as agents of the international reorganization which will bring about a world estate.

Citing his prophesy made 20 years ago that the world estate would be ruled by a devoted organization of volunteers, Mr. Wells said: "I can recall that conception of future society and I can appeal to Russia, China, Italy and much that is astray everywhere to substantiate that possibility."

ITALY PUZZLED OVER UNUSUAL DUAL IDENTITY

By JOHN T. BURKE

(By Universal Service)

ROME, March 15.—Not since Arthur Orton posed as Sir Roger Tichborne has there been such a perplexing case of dual identities as that of the man whom Italian police experts insist is Mario Bruneri, a printer with a criminal record in Turin, but who firmly claims to be Professor Giulio Cannello, of Verano, the war hero who disappeared wounded after winning the Medal of Valor at the battle of Monastir.

While Professors Ottolenghi, Giannelli, Descantis and Montessano, the foremost authorities on amnesia and correlated diseases, as a unit have expressed their belief that the man is Bruneri, they all admit that they may possibly be mistaken and that the printer may be the professor.

The adoring wife of the long lost Cannello is engaging two of the most expert lawyers in Italy and said she is ready to spend every lira of her modest fortune to win freedom for the man who, she is convinced, is the father of her son.

The claimant to the name of Cannello, in his little room at the sanitarium, is the most serene person in Italy. When Cannello's wife visited him yesterday claiming him as husband, he said, "Do not cry, darling. The new clouds will roll away as soon as the others did when your dear face awoke my long dead memory."

In the meanwhile the mother of Bruneri keeps crying, "My son, while a brother declares it is Mario but he is mad."

Saving Sam Is Gaining Renown As Trade Mark

Perhaps no trade character is better known to automobile owners of the West than "Saving Sam," the little trade character used by the Western Auto Supply company to symbolize its policy.

Sam's smiling countenance beams forth from newspaper sheets, magazine pages, bill boards, electric signs, in fact every medium used by the company to advertise. The smiling figure made its debut in 1918. The idea was originated by George Peppardine, president of the Western Auto Supply company, and was sketched by R. S. Van Rensselaer.

This trade mark is considered a very valuable adjunct to the company's extensive advertising, because of the cheerful expression on his face, which reflects the experience of the thousands of customers of the big company.

With one hand outstretched to render service, the other in his pocket to suggest saving, he stands portraying the policy of his company, that of "Saving and Service With a Smile."

Saving Sam is said to be particularly happy this week, as the Western Auto Supply company is celebrating its eleventh anniversary on the Pacific coast. As evidence of their appreciation to the hundreds of thousands of car owners who have made Western Auto's success possible through their liberal patronage, a birthday sale is being held in all the 150 western stores operated by the company.

Tamalpais Camp Fire Girls Fete Mothers In Annula Banquet

Mothers of members of the Tamalpais Campfire Girls were given a pleasant surprise last night at the second annual mother-daughter banquet of the organization held in the city hall club-rooms. They marvelled at the capability and resourcefulness of the Campfire Girls shown in the way they conducted the evening's program.

A dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock by the girls, who had also decorated the rooms and tables with St. Patrick's motifs. The mothers were then privileged to witness a formal council fire and ceremonial, followed by an entertaining program.

Madame Lupescu Bares Soul as 'Rocker Of Rumania's Throne'

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY

(Copyright 1927, Universal Service)

PARIS, March 15.—"I am not rocking the Rumanian throne. Believe me when I tell you that Prince Carol did not renounce throne and crown for me, as the world has been falsely led to believe through libelous reports. I am neither a siren, Circe nor a vampire. I am only a very loyal friend, and not an obstacle to Prince Carol's allegiance or duty."

I am revealing the secret of Madame Lupescu's association with Prince Carol of Rumania, as she told it to me in the first and only interview she has ever accorded any one. All published interviews are "fakes and forgeries," to quote her own words, and to such an extent does she feel outraged and incensed at what has been printed about her that she has consulted a noted Paris lawyer as to what action she can take to prevent such falsehoods about her.

"I did not drag Prince Carol from the throne, nor am I holding him back from being king. I am his friend, pal and comrade in exile, she told me.

I have been with Madame Lupescu every day for three days. The reports in the European and American press that the Crown Prince of Rumania has abandoned his beautiful friend I found to be untrue.

Madame Lupescu lives in a two-story villa on the outskirts of Paris, thick barred iron fencing and heavy gates guard the approach to the house, two detectives in the guise of pedestrians patrol the road, and only the blue liveried confidential porter, key in hand, can give admission from inside to the front garden. Inside the lofty, grim-looking house all is cosy and homelike. While waiting for Madame Lupescu I had time to appreciate the handsome silken furniture, small tables scattered with pretty pink knick-knacks, and the soft touches betokening the presence of a woman having the talent for making her home dainty and attractive.

She is a delicately-bred girl in the middle twenties. Her hair is not red; it is the color of ripe corn kissed by the sunset. Rich waves of pure gold softly frame her face, flower-like in its dainty beauty. Her name is Ellen; not Magda, she hastily informed me, of average height, well built, all curves, exceptionally and finely moulded hands, feet and ankles, her strikingly milk-white skin belies the rumor that she is a Jewess. She told me she is not a Jewess.

Her great beauty would obviously be considered her glorious hair, which she wears bobbed, not shingled. But to me her eyes are her chief attraction. Not big nor dark, rather light colored, shaded by golden lashes, emphasized by sunny brows. Do you know, how the trusting, contented eyes of honest childhood reflect light from within? Those are Ellen's eyes, alight with loyalty and faith.

"I will tell the truth," she stated, in her cool little voice, "long enough have I allowed a libelous press to satisfy the cravings of a scandal-hungry public with suggestive interpretations of my relations with Prince Carol. I want you to make it quite clear, to begin with, that I have never, never received any journalist, and that I have never given or issued any statement. This is the first interview I have ever given."

explain, to excuse myself, to send any kind of message to sensation-hungry newspapers? There is nothing to explain and I have nothing to excuse myself about. Qui s'excuse, s'accuse (who excuses himself, accuses himself). I just happened to be the friend of Prince Carol at a moment when he sorely needed friendship."

"And why have you changed your mind now? Has anything happened, or going to happen between you and Prince Carol?" She greeted my question with a shrug of impatience.

Nothing has happened, nothing will happen, ours is no vulgar love affair. True friendship is one of the rarest things on earth and sincere palship, honest and stable, between man and woman, perhaps the rarest. Prince Carol needed a friend. I was that friend. He still needs a friend, and so I stay by him.

"I am devoted to him, to his interests, his welfare. I do not keep him from his family and country. I am only a very loyal friend, and not an obstacle to Prince Carol's allegiance or duty."

"You will probably see for yourself," was her smiling retort. Madame Lupescu tells me that for two years she has been harassed and hounded by government agents and spies on account of her attachment to Prince Carol. I sensed as much in January, 1926, when I was in Milan at the same time they were there, secluded in the Hotel de Ville, with all the agents and envoys from Bucharest buzzing round their apartments.

"People have been saying and writing a lot of cruel things about me. They would try to make believe that I am every kind of a wicked woman, a siren, a how you call it?—vamp, a heartless adventurer, destroying the life of Prince Carol, taking him away from his princess wife and little son, making him enemies with his queen mother and king father, that I, poor Ellen, am responsible for all the troubles of his country, and that when I raise my little finger—so!" (suiting the gesture to the word) "The old throne of Rumania shakes and rocks! Oh! it is funny, funny!" but her laugh trailed off suspiciously near a sob—"I mean it would be funny if it were not so very shocking."

"I say it frankly, that I was fond of the prince, I had for him that which is more than so-called love—true friendship. I felt no shame for my friendship, nor did I hesitate to go to him in his need. Perhaps I was impetuous, forgetting how evil-minded is the world. However, go I did, to be a loyal comrade (pal) to my unhappy friend in his troubles. And then Oh! La..La..La! what a scandal, what excitement!"

Madame Lupescu could not forbear smiling rather wistfully at the recollection.

"I never bargained for that, I must confess! All the newspapers said we had eloped, and that I was the 'third woman in the case.' They called me terrible names, everyone hated me, and I do think that I have never been so miserable in all my life before."

"You see," changing her posture and patting the cushions, "never before had I been placed in such a bad and disagreeable position. I realized that I had no one to blame but myself, and that loyal friendship entails sacrifice, but I used to cry all night sometimes after reading the vicious reports written about us. It hurt me more for the sake of Prince Carol than for my own sake, because I knew his enemies were using me and my sincere friendship against him, leaving us both helpless and in an entirely false position."

"Why didn't you explain sooner?" I asked. "A whole year of misunderstanding and unhappiness might have been avoided for you."

"I was too proud, too hurt to explain," as you call it," she replied. "Why should I seek to
